In his welcome remarks, Sr. Prof. Gad highlighted the significance of learning approach in the conduct of research. In the course of the workshop, Prof. M. K. Janarthanam, emphasized the significance of research as a lifelong academic and professional endeavor, extending beyond the mere fulfillment of degree requirements. Prof. Janarthanam highlighted the multifaceted value of dissertations, including contributions to knowledge, skill development, academic and professional advancement, and personal growth. He underscored the importance of systematic planning, positive mindset, perseverance, and effective time management in the research process. Critical elements such as topic selection, feasibility, proposal design, literature review, methodology, ethical data management, and scholarly writing were discussed in detail. The speaker stressed the centrality of skill acquisition—aligned with NEP 2020—and the necessity of publishing research findings. Key challenges such as data collection and plagiarism were addressed, with practical strategies suggested: daily paper reading, summarization for subject expertise, and consistent engagement with supervisors and peers.
